The Alumni Meeting.

THE Annual Meeting of the College Alumni was called to order in the Chapel, June 22d, 1897, at 10 A. M., by the President, Surgeon-General J. Rufus Tryon, Washington, D. C.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. Wm. N. P. Dailey, of Albany, N. Y.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

A committee of three — Gen. A. J. Parker, '63, Albany; Prof. Franklin H. Giddings, '77; E. M. Hawkes, '87 — was selected by the chair to present nominations for the ensuing year.

The committee later presented the following names for officers of the Association, and upon motion they were duly chosen: Surgeon-General J. Rufus Tryon, President; Frank Bailey, Vice-President; Dr. William T. Clute, Secretary; Allen T. Jackson, Treasurer; A. J. Thomson, James Heatley, B. C. Sloan, J. B. Y. Warner, Frank J. Cooper, Executive Committee; Wm. C. Roberson, member of Athletic Board.

Treasurer Allen Jackson reported:

June, 1896, cash on hand.....	$380 50
Expenses of Bulletin Committee.....	187 38

Balance on hand.....	$193 12

The committee appointed — A. J. Thomson, Frank Cooper and H. V. Mynderse — reported the Treasurer's accounts correct.

Gen. Parker moved that the special committee on the Taylor Lewis Library be continued, and that the chair add a new member in place of L. E. Gurley, deceased. The chair appointed the Hon. Robert Earl to this committee. Treasurer Harroun reported that he had paid over to Mr. L. E. Gurley $1,955 towards rebuilding Prof. Foster's house, $1,000 being insurance.

The Bulletin Committee reported concerning the bulletin published during the year.

The following resolution, offered by Dr. A. MacFarlane, was adopted:

Resolved, That the Bulletin Committee be authorized to collect the annual dues of the Association, and that this sum be used in payment of the annual dinner and the expenses incident to the Alumni Association.

The following resolution was presented by the Rev. W. N. P. Dailey and adopted:

Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed by the chair to investigate the methods of procedure pursued in American colleges concerning the election and terms of office of trustees, and that such committee report at the next annual meeting the results of their research, with such recommendations as their investigations shall convince them are desirable.

The Rev. W. N. P. Dailey, E. P. White, Wm. J. Hillis, Rev. Philip H. Cole and Frank Cooper were appointed such committee.

A vote of thanks was then tendered Mr. E. P. White for his generous donation to the general expense fund of the College.

At 12 M. the election of an Alumni trustee was declared to be in order, and the poll was opened until 1 o'clock. Mr. White, of Amsterdam, and Mr. Aiken, of Troy, were made tellers. After the poll had closed, the result was announced as follows: Edgar S. Barney, New York, received all the votes cast, and was declared unanimously elected.

The meeting then adjourned.

THE ALUMNI BANQUET.

The members of the different classes present had their own tables, an arrangement that proved very enjoyable.

The toastmaster, Surgeon-General Tryon, called upon representatives of the decennial classes to respond for their classes. Among those who responded were Stephen R. Williams, '37; John A. De Remer, '57; Teunis S. Hamlin, '67; A. H. Archibald, '72; Clarence E. Aiken, '77; A. H. Pepper, '87; J. P. Palmer, '97, and the Chancellor, Hon. St. Clair McKelway. The songs of the College Glee Club and the class cries brought back many happy memories and fond associations.

PHI BETA KAPPA.

THE annual meeting of the Union College Chapter, Alpha of New York, was held in Washburne Hall on Alumni day, Dean Ripton presiding. The officers were re-elected for the ensuing year as follows: President, Dean B. H. Ripton; Vice-President, Dr. W. L. Pearson; Treasurer, R. J. Landon; Corresponding Secretary, J. I. Bennett; Recording Secretary, K. McKenzie. The President reported that the sum of $100, appropriated at the last previous meeting for the purchase of books for the College Library, had been expended by the officers of the Society, and the books, suitably marked with a book-plate, were exhibited. The Society appropriated the additional sum of $75 for the same purpose.

The members from the graduating class were: E. R. Cumings, N. Madison, Ohio; Ira Hotaling, Albany; W. A. Johnston, Palatine Bridge; Abel Merchant, Jr., Nassau; A. H. Winn, Albany.

College News.

THE College may fitly report progress in the work of instruction and administration. There are probably fewer arrears of work outstanding against the students than at any time within recent years. This is due to the fact that every effort is made to get the students to work off their conditions as soon as possible. The result is highly favorable, as shown by the character of College work and the spirit of the student body. The most conclusive evidence of the wisdom of this policy is the fact that when the College reassembled last fall it was found that the students had returned almost to a man.

Several new members have been added to the Faculty. They have come from various institutions, and aside from the fact that they have added to the efficiency of the teaching body, they have brought new ideas and increased the range of experience in matters of College education.

Prof. Patterson, Dr. Reeves, Mr. Buck and Mr. Cumings have gone to other fields of work, and Prof. Stoller and Mr. Edwards have been absent in Germany during the year, engaged in special study. On account of ill-health, Prof. Mosher has deemed it necessary to resign his position, much to the regret of both Faculty and students. He carries with him their best wishes for his speedy recovery.

One member of the Faculty who served the College long, and faithfully, and well, has been taken from our midst by the hand of death, but his name is enshrined in the hearts of three generations of students.

No department of the College has been more improved during the year than the Library. This progress is mainly due to the efficient and well directed labors of Mr. Lynes, the Acting Librarian. Under his supervision the catalogue has been revised and completed to date, and the books put in order. The facilities for library reference and study have also been much improved. It is gratifying to note that as the library has been put in better working order it has been much more extensively used by the students. Next year, furthermore, we shall begin to reap the benefits of the Hitchcock bequest, which will yield a very considerable amount for the purchase and care of books.

Union is sharing in the revival of debating. The literary societies have not yet regained the position they held fifty years ago, but they are becoming an increasingly important factor in the life of the College. The annual Allison-Foote debate and the prize contest in extemporaneous speaking do much to foster this interest. The regular courses in debating, begun this year, should be an even more potent influence in the same direction. Furthermore, it is likely that we shall hereafter participate in at least one annual inter-collegiate debate.

Other student interests have been maintained in a creditable manner. The musical organizations have equalled their very considerable reputation of last year. The College press has been ably conducted. Athletics have prospered. Union won first place in the Utica meet last spring, and may reasonably hope to repeat her success this year. The baseball team promises well, though the fact that some of our athletes are trying the fortunes of war has affected us both on the track and on the diamond. Particularly promising for the future is the abundance of athletic material in the freshman class.

An event of considerable interest, and likely to prove of great importance to the College, has just been inaugurated. Under the auspices of the Athletic Association, the first annual interscholastic meet was held at Schenectady, on Saturday, May 14. Twenty schools participated in the meet, and many prospective collegians had an opportunity to see Union at a most attractive season of the year. So favorable a beginning would seem to promise a still more favorable continuance. This is a matter which Alumni may readily help on in their various communities. The credit for this meet, both in origination and execution, is mainly due to Mr. Pollard, and our recent success in other athletic matters is also in a great measure due to his zeal and able supervision.

The campus has been beautified during the year by the completion of a second fraternity house. It is to be hoped that other fraternities will forthwith follow suit, and that every chapter in College will soon have a home on the Hill. Alumni will help the College quite as much as they will help their fraternities by building chapter houses.

In the roll of the freshman class Alumni will notice with pleasure the names of several Southern students. It is probable that this roll will be considerably increased next fall. Indeed, it is likely that Union's influence in the South, so great in ante-bellum days, will soon in a measure be regained.

It is needless to say that the Union campus is at the present time the most beautiful place of the sort in the country, and well worth an annual pilgrimage to see for oneself.

THE COLLEGE PRESS.

SOME of the Alumni are perhaps unaware of the present status of the College press.

For several years past the Concordiensis has been the only College paper, and has served the purposes at once of a newspaper and a literary magazine. A year ago, however, the Concordiensis was converted into a weekly newspaper, while the old Parthenon, which many of the graduates of the College will remember, was revived as a literary monthly. Both are ably edited. The Parthenon has not thus far been a strictly undergraduate publication. The editors have aimed to get contributions both from the Alumni and from the members of the Faculty, as well as from the students.

The Garnet is still published annually by the fraternities.

THE LIBRARY.

DURING the past year about seven hundred books and pamphlets have been added to the College Library by purchase and gift, and detailed lists of the same have been published from time to time in the Concordiensis. Among the more notable donations are about seventy volumes purchased from an appropriation made by the local chapter of the Phi Beta Kappa Society (works of philosophy, history and literature), and sixty volumes from the Ladies' Book Club (mostly current fiction, poetry and essays). Warner's Library of the World's Best Literature has also been placed in the Library by the gift of "One of the Boys of '93." In the way of sets of books, the most important additions have been The Johns Hopkins Studies in History and Political Science (twenty-eight volumes) and Johnson's Cyclopædia (eight volumes). A commendable precedent has been set by the class of 1898, which donated fifteen volumes, consisting mainly of treatises on sociology, which are reserved for lecture reference during the current year, but thereafter are to be part of the general Library.

There are on file in the reading-room of the Library seven daily newspapers (besides the Congressional Record), twenty-three weeklies and fifty-seven monthlies and quarterlies. After the periodicals are removed from the files they are laid aside for binding.

The Library is open ten and one-half hours daily, including holidays and excluding Sundays. The regular closing hour is 9 p. m., but the demand has been so great that by special arrangement the Library is commonly open an hour or two later for the accommodation of men who are doing special work. Increased facilities, not only in the way of new books and equipment, but in the way of seating capacity and shelf room, are urgently needed to keep pace with the expansion of the work of this department of the College.

ATHLETICS.

THE part played by successful baseball, football and track athletic teams in influencing prospective college men to enter a certain college is distinctly marked, and deplorable though it may seem to some of the older graduates, preparatory school students are conversant with the different colleges quite as much through the successes of their athletic and musical organizations as through the curricula which they offer.

In order that the enthusiasm of the undergraduate body and the interest and kindly feeling of the students of our preparatory schools may not diminish, we believe that it is to our interest to further all branches of athletics in Union in every fair and legitimate way. We do not believe that athletics should be carried to such a length that the regular courses of study shall suffer in any way, nor that the student should develop his body at the expense of his mind. It is our purpose to encourage all forms of physical exercise, so long as they are not carried to excess, in order that our students may be better fitted to battle with the world successfully by reason of the aid which their sound bodies will give to their mental faculties.

We do not wish to convey the impression that it is our intention to encourage athletics merely with the end in view of developing winning teams, but rather to interest as many of the students as possible in the different branches, in order that they may receive the benefits which naturally follow from systematic outdoor training.

In order that the best results may be attained from regular physical exercise, adequate facilities for physical development are an absolute necessity. Union is heavily handicapped in this regard at present, and this is especially noticeable in the gymnasium. It is an utter impossibility to carry on systematic gymnasium training successfully under these existing conditions. What is needed is a separate building of some sort for baseball practice and indoor work in field athletics.

Another want, and one which is yearly becoming more imperative, is an enclosed athletic field. Athletics have never been self-supporting in this College. There has been a yearly deficit made up by contributions from the Faculty and the Alumni. One of the causes of this shortage is due to the fact that it is an impossibility to collect admission money from spectators witnessing games, because the present grounds are not properly enclosed. It is the unanimous opinion of those closely connected with the College that an enclosed athletic field, where admission could be collected, would immediately place the athletic finances of Union on a firm and paying basis. Then, too, a well-equipped athletic field would offer opportunities for holding inter-scholastic athletic meets, thus bringing the students of the preparatory schools into closer contact with the college and the student body, and acquaint them more fully with the advantages which the College has to offer.

Since 1895, when the new Athletic Advisory Board was established, Union has been passing through a transition period in athletics. Before the establishment of this Board the different athletic managers had been permitted to do as they pleased, and through lack of experience, foresight and business methods, bills were contracted and numerous other mistakes made, which threatened to blight the athletic prospects of the College. With the inauguration of the Athletic Board came the attempt to place athletics on a thoroughly substantial basis, which is beginning to prove itself eminently successful. Naturally a reaction set in when this change was made; but the success of the track team at the New York State Intercollegiate Athletic Meet last spring, when Union captured the pennant, and the victories of the football team last fall, go to prove that Union is again waking up to her old-time vigor, and that the new basis upon which athletics have been placed in this College will prove the most beneficial and permanent in the end.

Our prospects for good baseball and track athletic teams are much brighter than for years. The class of 1901 is especially rich in athletic material, and with the strict attention which will be paid to their development many good athletes will undoubtedly be brought out.

Through the beneficence of Hon. J. H. Starin, of New York City, the gymnasium has been fitted with several new pieces of apparatus and put into condition for the winter's work.

The Need of the Electrical Engineering Department.

SINCE the electrical engineering course was opened to students, three years ago, many circumstances have encouraged those interested in this new undertaking, and upon the whole it has seemed wise that the work was attempted. Many very excellent students have entered upon the course, and we now have enrolled more than thirty members of the department. The directors of the General Electric Company both have and are taking a real tangible interest in this effort of the College. Aside from granting to our students the very important privilege of frequently inspecting all kinds of the most recent electrical apparatus in every stage of its manufacture, the company has also given us, for our own experimental work at the College, two fine direct current dynamos, two alternate current transformers of the latest and best type, one 6,000-ohm resistance box for testing purposes, and quite a number of other pieces of apparatus suitable for general experimental work in applied electricity. Then, also, several excellent galvanometers, resistance boxes, standard condensers, magnetic testing apparatus, and much subsidiary apparatus have been purchased from the fund set apart for the purpose by the Trustees.

But unfortunately no rooms suitable to the needs of the department are available in the present buildings.

At the best only very unsatisfactory, temporary quarters can be had, and, moreover, to make even these available requires the use of some of the Trustees' appropriation, while more than all of it is needed for apparatus. It is very unfortunate that some of this fund must be used in such a way, but the obligations of the College to its present students make it necessary. And after doing all that was possible, what was offered this year was quite unsatisfactory, and will be even more unsatisfactory for the larger class next year.

It is thus very important that some arrangement be made without delay to give adequate room for the Electrical Engineering Department. Considering the immediate needs of this department alone, the most economical plan would doubtless be to build a substantial structure so arranged that it could finally be made a portion of the proposed Engineering Building. Such a building would grant to the Electrical Engineering Department an opportunity for a development that it cannot have without proper quarters and equipments. This request for suitable room overlooks for the time the need of apparatus additional to that purchased and given this year, but it is merely because the greatest need is considered first.

The Hitchcock Bequest.

BY the will of the late Rev. Oscar Blakeslee Hitchcock, '52, the College has been made the recipient of an endowment amounting to upwards of thirty thousand dollars, the income of which is to be devoted to the purchase and care of books, but not, however, to purposes of library administration. Mr. Hitchcock's bequest to his "dear Alma Mater," to quote his own words, was prompted purely and entirely by his loyalty to his College. It was, indeed, a gift of filial love, and is most esteemed on that account. It was devoted, furthermore, to the best possible purpose, for while the importance of the library cannot be exaggerated, it must be confessed that it has not, in the past, received adequate attention.

Beginning next fall, the College will be in the enjoyment of the income of this fund. In addition to the main bequest, Mr. Hitchcock bequeathed his own library to the College.

A few facts regarding the life of Mr. Hitchcock will be of interest to the Alumni.

He was born May 24th, 1828, at Windham (now Ashland), N. Y., and was descended from old Connecticut stock. His school days up to his fifteenth year were spent at a district school. He then attended Delhi Academy, Ulster County, N. Y., for two years. The academy was seriously affected by anti-rent troubles, and he removed, first to Wilbraham, Mass., then to Amenia, Dutchess County, N. Y. He entered Union College in 1850, and was graduated in 1852, receiving an election to the Phi Beta Kappa Society. Rev. Nelson Millard, '53, speaks of the class of '52 as "the ablest one that had graduated at Union for several years," and further says, that "among its large number of able minds, Mr. Hitchcock's was regarded as the foremost." Hon. David Murray, his classmate, room-mate and life-long friend, says of him: "Mr. Hitchcock was not a remarkable student in the sense of grinding out a daily grist of hard work. * * * But in subjects dependent on his insight into the philosophy of things he was far more than a match for the brightest minds of his class. * * * He was an ardent reader of books. * * * He wrote easily and well, and with a maturity of thought which was constantly my surprise and admiration. His essays prepared for the usual college exercises were commented on by the professors as models of good and promising work. He was a poet of no mean powers."

After graduation he studied theology for a year at the Divinity School at New Haven, but was graduated in theology at Andover in 1856.

His first ministerial charge was at White River Junction, Vt. Failure of health compelled him to relinquish this charge. Upon his recovery he preached at Ashland, N. Y., until 1859, and then at Whitney's Point, N. Y., until 1860. His health failing him again, he gave up his charge and remained at home until the outbreak of the Civil War.

During the war Mr. Hitchcock rendered efficient help, not only by eloquent advocacy of the Union cause, but by actual service in the Union hospitals and in other capacities. He was in Charleston on the fourth anniversary of the surrender of Fort Sumter, when Gen. Anderson restored the flag he had struck in '61.

From the close of the war until the time of his death Mr. Hitchcock was virtually in retirement, his health not permitting of an active life, yet he continued to preach occasionally. He traveled extensively, and was furthermore a proficient student of geology. In fact, Union College is indebted to him for some valuable geological specimens.

During his latter years Mr. Hitchcock lived in Ithaca, N. Y., at the home of Mr. C. H. Van Houter, whose wife was his cousin. He died July 7th, 1897, at Shelter Island, whither he had gone to recruit his health.

In Memoriam.

BORN AUGUST 18, 1811.

DIED OCTOBER 19, 1897.

ADDRESS OF PRESIDENT RAYMOND.

COLLEGE CHAPEL, OCTOBER 23, 1897.

“BEFORE us this morning lies the body of one who was known and respected and loved by generations of Union College students, and it is most fitting that in this place a tribute should be paid to his memory. He was the last of the great teachers who, under the presidency of Dr. Nott, gave Union a national reputation, and I would that some one intimate with him in the days of his prime, when his strong personality was an important factor in the life of the institution, were here to speak, as I cannot, from personal knowledge, of those qualities of mind and heart which gave him a commanding position for more than half a century.

“John Foster was born in Hebron, Washington County, N. Y., August 18, 1811, and was prepared for college at the Academy in Fairfield, N. Y., which at that time was one of the great preparatory schools of the country. While a student at Fairfield his ability was recognized and he was employed to teach mathematics. In 1834 he entered the junior class in Union College, and quickly showed the characteristics which distinguished all his subsequent life in this institution. Inheriting from Scotch-Irish ancestors a strong physique and positive virtues, he threw himself into his undergraduate work with an energy and zeal that commanded the attention of the authorities, so that almost immediately after his graduation, in 1835, he was appointed a tutor in his Alma Mater — a signal honor then as now. After only three years of service in this capacity, he was made assistant professor of mathematics and natural philosophy, and ten years later was placed at the head of the department of natural philosophy, a position which he filled with exceptional ability until nearly forty years later he was made professor emeritus, retiring from active work upon half salary, as a special mark of appreciation of his long and abundant services to the College.

"This brief recital of the main facts of Dr. Foster's life gives but little idea of his influence as an educator, or of the important contribution which he made to the name and fame of Union. In his special department he was a recognized authority, and prepared a text-book on electricity when that science was yet in its infancy. In 1874 he was sent abroad by the Trustees, and commissioned to spend several thousand dollars contributed by the Alumni in the purchase of physical apparatus. He was absent, I think, two years, during which time he supervised the construction of instruments in Paris; and when he returned he brought back with him a collection of physical appliances which, it has been said, was without a rival at that time in this country. It is an interesting fact that when, two years ago, the discovery of the Roentgen ray created a demand for Crook's tubes, some of the leading institutions in America were without them, while a complete set was to be found in our own laboratory, having been purchased twenty years before by Prof. Foster.

"As a teacher Dr. Foster was exact and exacting. As one of his associates has said, 'He disturbed the indolent, but gained their gratitude.' His ability as a disciplinarian was early recognized, and in the days when the students were separated, the lower classes living in West College, situated between the canal and what is still known as College street, he was placed in charge of the West dormitory—always a turbulent place—and our older Alumni never weary of telling of the success with which he discharged his difficult trust. But his austerity was never of the kind that repelled. To an unusual degree he won the confidence and sincere affection of his students. No one who knows our College Alumni can doubt this. Wherever I have met them, almost their first inquiry has been concerning 'dear old Jack Foster,' as they lovingly called him, and many a tender story have I heard of his sympathy and kindness. Rarely has an old graduate visited the College in recent years without turning his steps first of all to Prof. Foster's house, there to renew delightful memories and pay his grateful tribute.

"When I was president of the General Alumni Association, and had charge of the annual meeting in this room during commencement week, I knew that the entrance of Dr. Foster would be the signal for a burst of applause, and that the proceedings would be interrupted for a time by the crowding of his old students about him for a hand-clasp and a greeting. The secret of his hold upon the affections of men was to be found in his warm personal interest. In their undergraduate days he showed by many little attentions that he cared for them and sought their good, and after they went out from the 'old gray walls' he did not forget them. While they live they will treasure his memory. It is not every college that has been blessed with three such beloved professors serving contemporaneously as Lewis, Jackson and Foster, and now that the last of this triumvirate has passed away, many of Union's sons will feel that for them the glory of the college has departed.

"Dr. Foster's strength did not appear alone in the class-room and in his personal relations with students; he was an aggressive force in all College affairs. His keen judgment of men made his services valuable in selecting new members of the Faculty, and for years this seemed to be a part of his work. He would make long journeys to interview those who were regarded as promising candidates for some vacant position, and his recommendations were generally accepted. In still other ways, apart altogether from his teaching office, he served his Alma Mater conscientiously and efficiently. He visited academies and preparatory schools to present the claims of higher education, so that many a youth received from him his first inspiration for a college course. He early became interested in the cause of temperance, and responded to calls for special addresses upon this important subject. The strength of his vigorous manhood was given to every good cause, and in this way he impressed himself upon the life of many communities, and used his gifts for the general weal.

Scarcely less dear to him than the College was the church, in which for many years he fulfilled the office of ruling elder. The duties of this office carried him to synods and assemblies, where he took no unimportant part in shaping the policy and furthering the welfare of the great denomination to which he belonged by descent and by strong personal conviction.

And now this long and active life has come to a close. Before us lies all that remains on earth of the teacher, administrator, counsellor and friend. We who knew him so slightly during the years of his retirement cannot appreciate all that he was and all that he did in the years of his vigor. If, however, our places were taken this morning by the students of long ago, who sat at his feet and caught his spirit, this place would be filled by a great company, who would in gratitude and love thank God for the life that has finished its earthly course and gone to an eternal reward."
